Underwear.

This is the age of science. The Dr. Jaeger Underwear is a scientific Underwear! It is "the only all-theyear-around" Underwear, made in four weights for the four seasons. Many find it only necessary to use two weights-light and heavy. It is the poor man's underwear, because it warms his body, keeps off rheumatism and sickness, improves his health and capacity for work, wears three or four years-so is the cheapest he can buy. It is the rich man's underwear, because he can afford the best. We are District agents. Write or call for book of explanation, samples, prices.

A Bride at Thirteen. Monday evening, at the home of th oride's parents, in Gaithersburg, Mr. Geo. W. Mobley wedded Miss Amanda Taylor. Rev. J. D. Rayfield tied the nuptial knot in the presence of a few near relatives of the contracting parties. It is reported that owing to the youthfulness of the bride considerable difficulty was experienced in procuring a license. Upon Mr. Mobley's application to the clerk of the court he was refused, and it was not until both Mr. and Mrs. Taylor interceded that the license was issued. Miss Taylor was but thirteen years of age.

A Lively Discussion Anticipated-Reorganization of John Hay School -General and Personal.

Evening Star Bureau, No. 529 King Street. Bell Telephone No. 106. ALEXANDRIA, Va., February 5, 1898.

Much interest is being manifested in the meeting of the city council to be held next Tuesday night, at which the time the affairs of the gas works will probably come up for settlement. There are already any number of candidates for the position made vacant by the removal of Mr. Cook, and the fight, it is thought, will be a hot one. It is more than probable that the portions of the mayor's message referring to safeguards being thrown around the office and a reduction in the salary of the office will cause considerable discussion. The question of salary will have to be settled becharter does not admit of the increase or decrease in the salary of any man holding office. The suggestion published in The Star some days ago, that the auditor make out the gas bills from the books of the meter inspector, and receive a correspond-ing increase in pay, has met with general approval.

Industrial School Incorporated. The act of incorporation for the John Hay Normal and Industrial School of this city has passed the Virginia legislature, has een signed by Governor Tyler and is now a law. In pursuance of the incorporation the board of trustees named therein met yesterday at the school building, corner Patrick and Montgomery streets, and reorganized by election of officers and teachers. The following were chosen: Rev. Robt. B. Robinson, president (re-elected); Magnus L. Robinson, secretary and treasurer (re-elected); Wm. S. Bayne, superintendent buildings and grounds; Wm. A. Carter, manager boys' industrial departments; Mrs. Josie G. Robinson, manager of girls in-dustrial departments; teachers in normal primary and industrial departments; Katie Anderson, Lilian Sayles, M. L. Robinson, jr., W. A. Carter; Mrs. Josephine Robinson, principal of normal department.

The secretary-treasurer is bonded. The act authorizes the school to own fifty acres of land and property to the value of $2,000. The school is now located in its new building and has an attendance of 140 pupils. Secretary Robinson offered resolutions thanking K. Kemper, superintendent city schools, for assistance in legal matters, and Senator Mushbach as patron of the act of ncorporation, which were unanimously

The president was authorized to secure Mr. K. Kemper as counsel for the board.

The chapel of the school is neatly furnished, and a fine organ was placed in posi-tion today. The chapel is named for the late Colonel Shaw. A kindergarten has been organized for small children of the school, under care of Miss Kate Anderson. A night school for men and women will be opened March 1. Remains Taken to Lorton. The remains of the late Miss Elizabeth Cranford, who died at the Alexandria Infirmary at an early hour yesterday, were today taken to Lorton, Va., for interment, Miss Cranford was seventy-one years of age and had long been a resident of this city.

German Minister of Agriculture Says They Have Influenza.

A dispatch from Berlin yesterday says: Germany may not stop in her anti-American course with her decree against American fruit, but may attempt to cut off our growing trade in horses. It is now generally known that the fruit decree was issued by Dr. Miquel, the Prussian finance minister, and Baron von Ham merstein Loxten, minister of agriculture.

merstein Loxten, minister of agriculture, without the authority of the Prussian cabinet or the bundesrath.

Great significance attaches, therefore, to the statement of the hostile minister of agriculture at today's session of the Prussian diet. He declared that American horses developed influenza after importation, and added:

'If the importations increase we shall certainly be forced to adopt suitable quarantine in order to protect curseives.'

AFFAIRS IN ALEXANDRIA POWER OF THE BOSSES CURING

City Council to Adjust Difficulty of the It is Causing the Republican Leaders me Anxiety.

> This May Be an Issue in the Con gressional dElections as Well as in 1906.

Both the republicans and democrats have selected their congressional committees in preparation for the campaign which is to determine the complexion of the next Congress. The democrats some time ago completed their organization on Bryan free silver lines. There is no contest over the organization of the republican committee, and it is well understood that the officers of the old committee will be re-elected and their campaign will be conducted along the same lines it was last fall. If there is any change as to the issues it is simply that the democrats are more firmly committed to silver and the republicans are more fearlessly fighting for the preservation of the gold standard the gold standard.

The division of sentiment in this country on that question is pretty well understood, but there is another thing that is liable to have a great influence upon the result of both the congressional election and that of 1900, and which is giving some anxiety to the thoughtful men in Congress, especially among republicans. This is the question of machine control in politics. There is a growing belief that the republican party has much to fear from a persistent effort a growing belief that the republican party has much to fear from a persistent effort of the bosses to retain and expand their political power. A paradoxical situation renders the power of that machine less dangerous to the democrats. In their case, where the machine is powerful the platform of the party is weak, and the machine simply operates to hold in the party lines, without regard to principle, men who, if they acted independently of the machine, would not support the party candidates. To that extent the machine power operates temporarily to their advantage. temporarily to their advantage.

Fears of the Bosses.

With the republicans the situation is different. They have much to lose and nothing to gain by the domination of the bosses. Many who feel that there is nothing for the republicans to fear from going before the country on the direct Issue of currency reform and the preservation of the gold standard, as against Bryanism and free silver, fear that they may be threatened with serious defeat if the power of the machine becomes fixed upon the party. It is recognized that there is a revolt among republicans v herever the power of bosses has been felt against further bending of the neck to the bosses. This may mean a serious loss of votes if the power of the machine is not broken meanwhile; and it certainly means that many recruits that should be had from among "sound mone;" democrats will not come to the support of the republicans. Most of the latter are apt to argue that if it is to be a mere matter of machine politics they may as well stand by their own machine, where there may be some hope of profit. They see an advantage to themselves in standing by the machine in New York and in Chicago, for instance, and will hardly be disposed to sacrifice that advantage to any sentiment of principle is that involves the acceptance of new bosses

Get Rid of the Machine. The men in Congress who thus examine the situation feel perfect confidence in the ability of the republican party to retain control of the government if the political struggle is confined to an issue of principle, and they do not want to see their cause weakened by the want of confidence excited among the people by the persons who pose as po-litical bosses and undertake to dictate the policies as well as the appointments of the government and the nominations of county, state and national conventions. It is there-fore felt to be of vital importance to the party and to the cause of "sound money" party and to the cause of "sound money" that the machine system should be got rid of as far as possible before the campaign comes on. By the men who feel this way the action of the Business Men's League in Philadelphia is viewed with great satisfaction, and the hope is entertained that, for the good of the party, the fight against Quay will be successful. It is felt that if the machine is smashed by the republicans in Pennsylvania it will give an insuration in Pennsylvania it will give an inspiration to republicans all over the country and will overcome the hesitation of many who are on the verge of coming to recruit the "sound money" forces. With all the confused clamor about civil service reform, about "deliberate prosperity" and differences as to finance, with respect to the policy of the administration, it is felt that the real weakness of the administration is not to be found in any of this clamor, but in the fact that the bosses have been recognized too much with respect to the con-trol of the states which they claim as their

PROTECT AMERICAN CITIZENS. Spain Continues to Delude and Hum bug the United States.

To the Editor of The Evening Star:

The observer of current events must be impressed with the force of recent editorial articles in The Star referring to occurrences in Havana, and to the diversions of Castilian diplomacy at Madrid and Washington. He may be entertained by the kaleidoscopic character of these performances, but if he is a citizen of the United States he will be chagrined and mortified to see how easily his country is made the dupe of Spanish jugglery. The editorial, entitled "Returning Our Visit," which appeared in The Star of yesterday, deserves to be read and reread by every genuine American. As every per-son who is at all informed on the sub-ject knows, the situation in Cuba has for more than twenty years passed from bad to worse, notwithstanding the reiter-ated excuses and promises expressed in diplomatic phrases on sealed paper, and the lessons of history teach that this prothe lessons of history teach that this pro gression will continue until the gem of the Antilles shakes off the Spanish yoke But there is one feature of the situation which this government has not sufficient-ly regarded, and which to its discredit has been almost entirely ignored by the last as well as by the present administration. I refer to the neglect of this government to opportunely protect American lives and property on the Island of Cuba, and where outrages have been committed to demand from Spain substantial and prompt reparation. This regret to adequately protect American lives and property in Cuba is abundantly evidenced by official communications which is unpleasant reading for Americans, and this is a feature of the situation touching which the government appears callous. There are occasions, such as for instance the British commanders in India faced against almost overpowering odds, when the representatives of a state must decide between the sacrifice of the enemy and its citizens, and there are times when the "gunboat policy" is a humane policy, and the only policy for a self-respecting state to follow. There was a pericd when our authorities seem to have recognized that the righting the wrongs of American citizens in Cuba was an imperative duty, and as far back as 1874 the American Secretary of State (Mr. Fish) addressed the American titizens in Cuba was an imperative duty, and as far back as 1874 the American Secretary of State (Mr. Fish) addressed the American intensity in this language:

"Meanwhile our political relation to Cuba is altogether anomalous, seeing that for any injury done to the United States or its citizens in Cuba we have no direct means of redress there, and can obtain it only by slow and circuitous action by way of Madrid. The capitain general of Cuba has, in effect, by the laws of Spain, suprime and absolute authority there for all purposes of wrong to our citizens; but this government has no adequate means of demanding immediate reparation for such wrongs on the spot, except through a consul, who does not possess diplomatic character, and to whose representations, therefore, the capitain general may, if he choose, absolutely refuse to listen.

""In these circumstances the question what decision the United States shall ta been almost entirely ignored by the last as well as by the present administration. I refer to the neglect of this government

Mr. W. Kelly, 318 L St. S.E. Cured of bronchial catarrh.

We publish this week for the first time the case of Mr. W. Kelly of 318 L street southeast. This case is a striking example of the serious results that may and frequently do follow neglected catarrh. It exemplifies what Doctors McCoy and Cowden have been urging upon the people, and that is, the early treatment of Catarrh, thereby preventing the very serious results which otherwise are quite sure to happen. Mr. Kelly's case is an example of neglected Catarrh. He says:

preventing the very serious results which otherwise are quite sure to happen. Mr. Kelly's case is an example of neglected Catarth. He says:

"I had had Catarth for quite a number of years; had never given it any attention, because the prevailing idea was that nothing much could be done for such cases. I therefore let it go on from time to time, paying no attention to it. I had all the symptoms of an ordinary case of Catarth of nose, throat and bronchial tubes; caught cold easily, coughed a little, secreted a good deal of mucus in the nose and throat.

"About two years ago, one evening while sitting taking to a party of triends, I was attacked by an unusually severe coughing spell, when suddenly, without any warning or any premonitory symptoms of any kind, I was taken with a severe hemorrhage. I coughed up blood, which flowed from my throat in large quantities, surely not less than a half a pint. This attack not only alarmed me, but it weakened me very much. It prostrated me so that I had to quit work. I lost flesh, became weaker, the cough increased, and I became a wreck of my former self. I never was a very heavy man, my average weight being 134 pounds, and the amount of flesh I lost showed very great in my case. I do not suppose I weighed very much more than 100 pounds.

"Of course I had physicians treat me; several who enjoyed a very high, reputation, and whom I have great regard for still, but their treatment did not seem to reach my case, although they gave me every attention. Their remedies seemed insufficient. Nothing helped the cough, nothing helped my appetite, nothing gave me sieep at night. My friends, as well as myself, though that I had consumption. My cough was dreadful; I had fearful headaches.

"All this time I was not able to do any labor of even the lightest character (and my work is not heavy). I was almost in despair. I had noticed for some time the advertisements of Doctors McCoy and Cowden in the papers, and finally one morning I told my wife that I believed that I would call upon these ph the strain of a very severe cough had ruptured the membrane, which had been made delicate and sensitive through disease. This accounted for the bleeding. I cook their treatment for some time. I was encouraged in the continuance of the treatment from the fact that almost from the start my condition improved. Within a month my cough was better, my appetite was improved, and I was gaining in weight. It was not long before I was able to work. I find the treatment easy, and I am only too pleased to now state that my condition is one of apparent health. My cough practically amounts to nothing; I sleep all night; am not disturbed at all, and my strength and weight have returned. I weigh as much as I ever did in my life, and am able to do a hard day's work. I get up in the merning rested and refreshed from a good night's sleep.

"This story may seem long, but it does not half cover the symptoms of my case, the condition that I was in, and the great benefits that I have received. And, in onclusion, I can only state that the treatment of these physicians has not only done more than I expected for me, but it has done everything tnat any treatment possibly could; for what more could they have done for me—given me back my health and strength, my weight, stopped the cough and placed me in a position where I am able to do a full day's hard labor without any inconvenience.

"I feel perfectly justified in urging every one convenience.

"I feel perfectly justified in urging every on who has catarrhal troubles of any kind to apply these physicians for an examination and trial otheir methods."

and, in the light of history as enacted on the Island of Cuba, it is impossible to understand how it was that, with the lives and properties of American citizens daily endangered, the government of the United States, during a period of nearly three years, instructed its naval commanders to prohibit the entry into any Cuban port of any American cruiser or gunboat. And it is a humiliating reflection that when the "White Squadron" should have been in Cuban waters, they were maneuvering on dress parade at Newport or Bar Harbor. About Dress Goods.

THE disadvantage of having such goods on the second floor is only for us-in having to quote less than usual prices in order to get you there. The advantages to you are many:-less prices, more room, greater comfort and better light than on any first floor dress goods department in the United States. And Monday's exhibition and sale shall prove that the Palais Royal is first with a complete collection of 1898 Wool and Silk Fabrics.
